INFO

Clubs will be planning their fee structure for next fall in the next months. One of the characteristics of successful clubs is good coaching. Another one is having an informed membership.

Over 20 of the bigger clubs across the country build SWIM Magazine into their membership. For the 1986-87 season we would like to offer the following bulk subscription rates to Canadian swim clubs. In the case of large numbers we are reducing our rates while for smaller quantities a modest increase will be made.

Subscription rates will be as follows:

Number of copies	Cost per copy (family)
150+	$ 15
75 or more	16
50 or more	17
10 to 49	18
2 to 9	20
singles	25

These rates are for 10 issues, mailed directly to each family's home address. Special forms are required to submit these subscriptions. These will be mailed to clubs during the summer.

For those wishing faster service than the one second class mail provides, first class mail is also available at $40 per year. This service is provided now to members of the Canadian Swimming Coaches Association. Those wishing information on either first class service or membership in the CSCA should write to SWIM.

ASPECTS OF SWIMMING SUCCESS

PATRICIA YOUNG

Competition is the essential ingredient for a quality program. Without it, success is difficult if not impossible.

Success in isolation is the exception not the rule. We set our standards by those around us. If you are swimming in a remote area chances are that your sights are set on regional successes not national, let alone international ones.

At the Esso Cup/Commonwealth Trials this year, Etobicoke placed seven swimmers on the national team. The swimmers who make a conscious choice to join a club of that caliber expect to be challenged.

"The lack of competition doesn't keep the swimmers honest," says Kerry Mummery, coach at Saskatoon Goldfins. "You gradually lose your competitive edge by not having to stand up.

"The most success we've had is when there is strong inter-team competition. Right now we have strong 13-14 year-old girls and they push each other. It is much harder to do it alone."

Jim Fowlie, who has coached at six clubs, ranging from Prince George in the interior of B.C., to his current position as head coach of North York Aquatic Club, sees the problem as a regional attitude.

"A small club like Ajax (just outside of Toronto), which produced an Olympic gold medalist, would never have a shot in western Canada. They would never be able to afford the travel costs. Because of their exposure to competition they can stay small and still be successful."

The problem is not limited to the west. Andrew Cole has swum in Dartmouth, N.S. and Toronto. The same problems are apparent to him.

"The thing I find most noticeable is that in the Maritimes motivation has to come from within. Every time out I'm on my own. I have to continually motivate and push myself. In Toronto the motivation is in the next lane."

This constant pressure can have a backlash effect on some young swimmers.

"There are fewer meets out west," said Fowlie. "In some cases it helps a kid get through those dry spells. In other cases they can hide behind their reputation and stop improving.

"If a kid has a bad year in the east he gets chewed up."

IN THE MARITIMES MOTIVATION HAS TO COME FROM WITHIN. IN TORONTO THE MOTIVATION IS IN THE NEXT LANE.

"They are more swimming oriented in Toronto," agrees Cole. "The kids in the Martimes are just as aggressive, just as keen, but I think they lack confidence."

Isolated clubs have to deal with the lack of competition within the club, at local meets and the added burden of the high cost of travel to find suitable challenges. These are constraints that people in large urban centres would never stop to consider.

"You have to realize that the small towns operate on a 'mail order' mentality," said Fowlie. "Even doing the simplest thing, like getting parts for a video camera, is difficult. When I was in Prince George it took 14 months to have the camera fixed. In Toronto we'd have it back the next day.

"Communication between clubs is another example," he continued. "In eastern Canada everyone knows whats going on before the the coach does. One of my swimmers was sick and I learned about it from another club's coach. Just for fun I traced the story and found it had travelled through six people before it got to me.

"Out west I've had kids in the hospital and nobody knew about it. It's amazing what long distance phoning will discourage people from doing."

A coach has to be able to convince his club that the extra costs incurred by travelling to better meets is worth the price.

"You can get all the competition that we spend thousands of dollars on, for the price of a subway token in Toronto," said Mummery.

"Our travel budget will be over $60,000 next year. Regina is our closest competition and they're two-and-a-half hours to the south. That's fine for development but the elite swimmers don't get challenged."

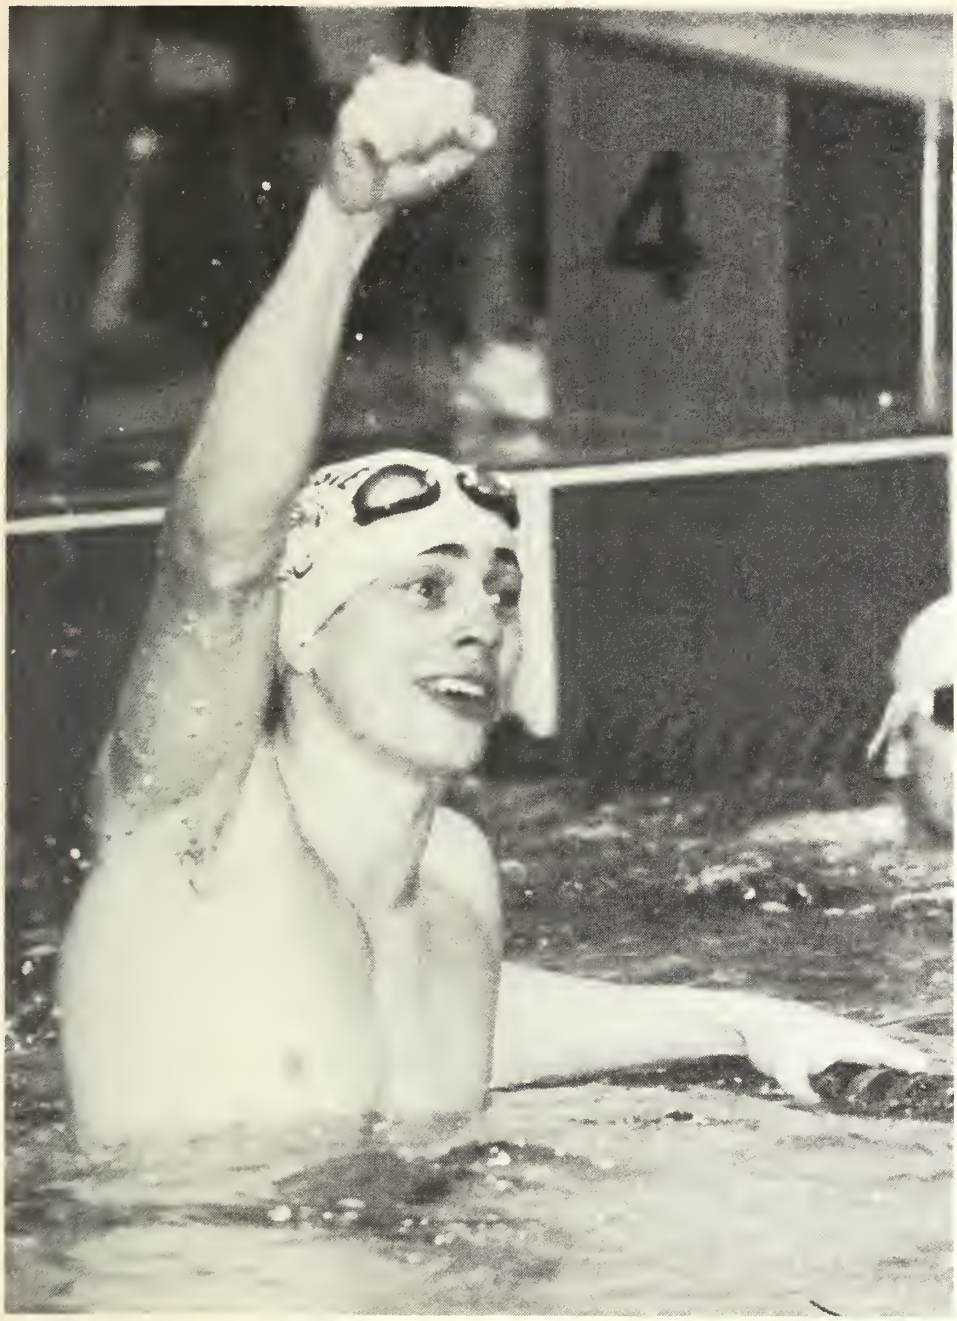
"There are some clubs with good young kids in western Canada," said Fowlie, "but because of the high cost of travel they end up stagnating."

Nothing illustrates the need for exposing talented swimmers to competition than the case of Kim Stobbs from Saskatoon. She is currently third on the all-time 100 back list for 12 year-olds. Ahead of her are Lori Melien, the record holder, and Nancy Garapick, who went on to win an Olympic medal in that event.

"Kim left Saskatoon to live in Sarnia," said Mummery. "Her training there was really reduced. The edge she got was from standing up and racing repeatedly against the best girls in southern Ontario. She came back to Saskatoon knowing what it takes to win."

Another problem is educating the parents to the need for good competition and the expenses that go with it.

"The parent group," says Fowlie, "is just a reflection of how well the coach has educated and communicated with them. Few clubs know enough to



ANDREW COLE, WINS 1985 CIAU 200 BREASTSTROKE

"Talbot hit the nail on the head," said Fowlie. "It's the ability and willingness of the coaches to sell elite sport. The common thing I've noticed all across the country is that great coaches CONSTANTLY sell excellence.

"What's pulling us down is the undermining by non-producers."

"It seems to be improving," says Cole. "Hiring full-time coaches from other parts of the country can help swing the orientation from regional to national.

"Unless the kids are exposed to this type of attitude they'll continue to be satisfied with provincal wins. You have to have higher goals than that."

Because not all clubs can afford the cost of an elite coach, an alternative is the use of training centres and camps. By getting to know each other, their peers will become the best swimmers from all parts of the country, not just in their province or club.

"I have three kids going to the youth team camp this year," said Mummery. "They'll get to know the kids in the rest of the country instead of just reading about them.

"If we want to produce world ranked swimmers that is what is needed."

For Andrew Cole his spot on a tour team stopped him from quitting the sport all together.

"I had some success around 17, the age when a lot of swimmers quit. It just gave me the drive to go on," he said.

Despite the constraints it is still possible for isolated areas to produce elite swimmers. The very fact of the isolation can save a swimmer the meat grinder atmosphere of age group swimming in Ontario.

The one thing that can't be ignored is the need for excellence oriented coaches who know how to build a club and develop elite athletes.

"Swimming can be such a burnout sport," said Cole. "The most important thing now is to get the right type of coach." □ even have a goal statement."

Fowlie believes that, "it's not necessarily the money, but the attitude each coach takes into the program that gives direction to the club."

Which brings us to the one fact that can't be ignored; swimming is a coach centred sport. With the right coach and committment even the most isolated club can achieve success. The most spectacular example was the Thunder Bay Thunderbolts.

In 1972 Don Talbot took the position of head coach at TBT. By 1976 they had eight swimmers on the Montreal Olympic team, with Graham Smith winning a silver and Becky Smith two bronze medals.

In 1976 they set the TAG points score record which only this year fell to Etobicoke. A decade later TBT is ranked 18th in TAG.

CALGARY SWIMMERS WIN AT US NATIONALS MURPHY, OUNPUU WIN AT NCAA

It was to be a first of sorts. This meet, held March 25-29 in Orlando, Fla. was scheduled to fall midway between the women's NCAA and men's NCAA championships. The result was that hardly any of the top collegiate swimmers took part.

Many thought this would hurt the meet, but it did just the opposite. The best high school age and older swimmers, past their collegiate eligbility, were able to compete. However not all is as it should be, of the 28 individual events 10 were won by foreign swimmers. Two of these were by a surprisingly strong University of Calgary team which added three seconds, and two thirds.

For Mark Tewksbury it was three in a row. The last three times he has raced world record holder Rick Carey, Mark has beaten him. Mark's winning time in the 100 yards back was 49.33. He added a third in the 200 with 1:46.74. Calgary's medley relay of Tewksbury, Chernoff, Ponting and Lacoursiere finished second, after having to swim in an early unseeded heat without competition from the best teams.

Tom Ponting won the 100 fly, 47.61, and placed a close second to Denmark's Benny Nielsen in the 200.

Suki Brownsdon, was unsuccessful in defending her breaststroke title from a year ago. She finished second in the 100, with a time faster than Ounpuu's NCAA win, and was third in the 200.

Calgary coach Deryk Snelling explained the strategy involved. "The meet gives us something positive to think about and set our goals accordingly. The racing experience is invaluable. Often time is not a big factor, but an individual's ability to race side-by-side is what's really important.

"The Americans really know how to use the walls when turning and they have the best starts. It comes from their emphasis on short course.

"Our team didn't do so well at the start of the meet, when we swam in the 200's. By the last day they were tough, having learned to use the walls and race aggressively to get out in front.

"I believe our swimmers are just as fit as the Americans, but we are less experienced when it comes to racing. I'm working on developing this 'race experience' before Seoul. □

EUROPEAN TOUR

The University of Calgary swim team will be competing in England during the early part of May.

"The first part of the trip lasts 10 days," Deryk Snelling, head coach of UCSC explained. "We arrive in England, May 1, and compete in Cardiff (Wales) on the weekend of the 3rd-4th. We follow this by training with two British clubs for the following week.

"Five of the best kids, will then go to the Soviet Union for a training camp on the shores of the Black Sea, near the Turkish border. It's a unique opportunity to train with the best Soviets and perhaps some GDR swimmer.

"We'll be there for 10 days during which time we'll be completely integrated with the Soviet training regime. It's a wonderful opportunity to see what they're doing first hand.

"This 22-day tour will be a thorough test of everyone's abilities in competition and training in unfamiliar circumstances.

Snelling feels that international success is only possible from 'tough athletes'. "Canadians are seldom fit enough or prepared psychologically to swim as fast as Eastern swimmers who are able to establish world class times throughout the season.

"I'm aiming our team at being able to swim fast at least four times a season."

On the coming Commonwealth Games in July, Snelling, Canada's overall head coach expressed the following, "Edingburgh is an excellent venue. It has a nice environment, good crowds and there will be intense competition. It may not be the quickest pool in the world, but a race is a race. Winning should be more important than the times." □

NCAA ROUNDUP

Women's NCAA Champs.

The University of Texas won their third consecutive team title with 633 points to runner-up Florida with 586.

Cindy Ounpuu's double gold medal performance in the 100-200 breast, with times of 1:02.57 and 2:12.73, wasn't enough to help her Florida team catch Texas. Cindy had just qualified for Canada's Commonwealth Team at the Esso Cup held two weeks prior to this meet.

Ounpuu's swims are just off the best-ever yard times (1:01.13 and 2:11.46) set by Tracy Caulkins.

One US record was set by Jenna Johnson of Stanford in the 100 yards fly with 52.69.

MEN'S NCAA CHAMPS.

Stanford won their second consecutive team title with Sean Murphy helping the cause with his 200 yards backstroke win. His winning time of 1:45.90 improved on his 1:46.29 of a year ago when he won the same event.

Murphy placed fourth in the 100 back, and helped Stanford win the 4x100 medley relay.

Matt Biondi was the star of the meet with a sweep of the 50-100-200 free. The last person to accomplish this sprint sweep was Al Schwartz, way back in 1930.

Biondi set an American record in the 50 free with 19.22, and broke another barrier when he anchored his California 4x100 free relay team with a 40.98, the first sub-41 second relay leg.

Stanford's winning team was helped by Pablo Morales' American record in the prelims of the 100 fly 46.26 and Jeff Kostoff's record swim in the 1650 free with 14:37.87. □

BASIC SPEED ESSENTIAL INGREDIENT

PATRICIA YOUNG

"The bottom line in being a sprinter is that you must be FAST, and Canadians lack one simple ingredient—front end speed."

We seem to be unable to produce world class sprinters. Byron MacDonald, University of Toronto coach, feels that speed is what is lacking. He was one the best sprint flyers we've ever had, winning the 1970 Commonwealths. He has coached Canadian sprinters, Dan Thompson (54.51/100 fly) and Blair Hicken (50.92/100 free).

"Canadian men are not world class sprinters because their flat start 50's are too slow," MacDonald said.

"World class sprinters usually hit the first 50 in the range of 1-1.5 seconds over their best 50 sprint time, while their second 50 has a drop off rate of about 1.3-1.8 seconds.

"Canadian men are returning home as well as the best, averaging between 1.2 and 1.8 drop offs, so we are not dying, as a matter of fact, we are actually coming home better. Our men split much closer to their best times going out (.7 to 1.1 average).

"The women's problems are more serious," continued MacDonald. "All the world class sprinters hit the first 50 in 26-27.0 seconds. We only have a handful who can do that for a standing 50. This is compounded by the fact that world class sprinters have a drop off of 1.1-1.9, while Canadian women drop off in the 2-3.0 second range.

"The speed requirement is not a reversible equation. To be a world class sprinter you must have a very fast 50, but just because you have world class 50 speed does not mean you'll be a world class 100 sprinter.

"I believe there's a physical component to swimming fast in season," said MacDonald. "You can't swim fast in meets by swimming slow in practice. Training must be structured to offer the swimmer the means to go fast. Endless metres are definitely not the answer."

It's the old adage; You play like you practice.

Lars Erik Paulson noted Swedish coach of world class sprinters most recently Per Johansson European Champion in 1981 and '83 Olympic bronze medalist in 1980 and '84 spoke about sprinting at an international coaches conference in Helsinki

Paulson's workouts consist of very fast swimming. He does not believe in doing a great deal of repetitions, but instead aims for the highest possible quality during each set. He believes that, "quantity is the enemy of quality."

PER JOHANSSON

SAMPLE WORKOUT / Lars-Erik Paulson
AM-Short Course

500 m warm-up
20x25	1 to 4, descending on 30 seconds
1000 kick	rarely done
1000 pull	with pull buoy and sprint into turns
3x100	in sets of 4 x 25 'super sprint set' on about 2:40 pace, performed without breathing or 'all-out'.
400 swim	10 strokes of each of fly, back, breast, free
10x50	fly on 50 second pace
10x50	back on 60 second pace
10x50	breast on 1:10 pace
10x50	free on 45 second pace
200 kick	fly with no board
3x100	kick on main stroke
3x100	pull on main stroke
3x100	swim main stroke with long rest start when swimmer feels ready

AM-Short Course (8 days out of Nationals)

200 swim	main stroke, work on technique
4x25	sprint, long rest
400 swim	easy swim, concentrate on technique maximum sprint 5 metres in and out of turn
10 minutes rest
3x50	'mini-max' swimming maximum speed with minimum number of strokes
10 minutes swim easy any stroke

Testing Series done every two weeks
Test to last one hour, swimmer to do 4x100 with high quality and descending progression of times. Test is done after a regular warm-up.
Example of a set done by Per Johansson two weeks before Swedish Championships: (long course)

Paulson likes to involve his athletes in their workouts. "During the workout it is important to explain each set," he said, "so that the athlete is aware of what he is doing and it's purpose. This is indispensable. I think of it as another 'workout' for them."

Even the rest intervals are determined by the swimmer. Paulson's swimmers tell him when they feel they are ready to go. This type of participation actively involves the sprinter in his own training program. It's definitely not recommended for the immature or uncommitted.

Paulson spends alot of time on "super sprints"; swimming 12, 15 and 25 metres. These are designed to familiarize sprinters with high speed.

"Swimming at slower speeds gives the sprinter little benefit," he said, echoing MacDonald's comments. "Neglecting these sets will reduce a swimmer's speed."

He defines this type of workout as "demand and relaxation", the alternating of high anaerobic intensity and active rest.

This brings us to the problem of how the anaerobic/aerobic components of sprinting should be proportioned.

A sprinter has to develop his aerobic capacity if he expects to reduce the fade, but Paulson's sprinters never swim events longer than 100 metres free.

Paulson feels that it is much easier to spoil a sprinter's talent than it is to develop it.

"There is a distinct difference in swimming the 100 and 200 free. It is easier to reconcile the 200 with the 400 then it is with the 100. A distinction has to be made: either 100 or 200."

MacDonald disagrees with this. "Current research states that in order to go sub 50, you must also be able to swim at least a sub 4:10(lcm) for the 400, due to the aerobic requirements of the 100. You need speed, but very few 'drop deaders' ever make it as world class sprinters."

To further confuse the situation, Michael Gross, world record holder in the 100 fly as well the 200 free and fly, recently added the 400 free to his collection. Matt Biondi may be the best of the lot, with a near world best ever in both the 50 and 200 free, as well the only sub-49 second 100 free and an even more incredible 47.7 relay leg.

"One of the most important factors influencing results is the so called 'mental capacity' of the sprinter," said Paulson.

"During training it's absolutely necessary to to learn the art of winning. A sprinter must have strong personality. Motivation has to come during workouts, dry land training and even in their spare time. To start at a meet is too late."

"Many sprinters are afraid to put it on the line in mid season. They perfer to pray for a miracle taper at the end of the season," said MacDonald. "The psychological reasons for slow in-season performances can't be downplayed."

Both Paulson and MacDonald agree that strength and technique are the cornerstones of great sprinting.

"Coaches should strive to make the athlete independent," Paulson said. "He should arrive at the stage where the swimmer analyzes his own strokes and corrects himself." □

Special thanks to Marek Barlowski, coach of the Y Laser SC in Saskatoon with his help in translating Lars-Erik Paulson's talk.

OPEN OLYMPICS PROPOSED

An elegibility commission of the International Olympic Committee has advocated a fully open Olympics. The Soviet bloc opposes the proposal.

The United States Olympic Committe has sided with the Soviet bloc.The USOC favours allowing a pro from one sport to compete in another sport. For example a professional football player could compete in track, but a track pro could not.

Robert Helmick, president of the USOC, says, "The Olympic Games should remain a goal for all athletes and not degenerate into simply another forum for professional athletes. Helmick is also the president of the Internation Swimming Federation (FINA).

IOC President, Juan-Antonio Samaranch promised that the new IOC eligibilty code would allow out-and-out professionals to compete beginning with 1988 in Calgary and Seoul.

The strong objections to these amendments from the Soviet bloc are hypocritical. Samaranch observed that, "For us, a professional is the same as a state athlete."

'State athletes' is Olympicspeak for competitors who represent Communist countries. They have always been treated as amateurs, while in fact are professional in every sense of the word. But then, Olympicspeak is a language all its own, rich in ambiguity and bafflegab.

If you are a capable athlete in one of Soviet states, that becomes your occupation. You're on the government payroll. For Olympic purposes, though, you remain an amateur.

In a limited way Canada subsidizes its best athletes. The practice was covered by an IOC bylaw which says nobody should "be placed at a social or material disadvantage as a result of his or her preparation for and participation in the Olympics and international sports competition."

Gradual change is creeping in. Steve Podborski got rich while skiing as an amateur. Track star Ben Johnson can buy his mother a house and drive a neat car without jeopardizing his status. But he mustn't actually be called a pro. Alex Baumann is building up a nice nest-egg courtesy of the Egg Marketing Board and other endorsements.

Soviet bloc countries voiced their strong objection that a relaxing of the elegibility rules would further commercialize the Games. This is ironical since the Goodwill Games, sponsored by maverick television magnate Ted Turner, to be held this July in Moscow, are about as blatantly commercial as you can get. □

Speedo's newest flash of inspiration is smooth, shimmering LustreFlex, a remarkable stretch polyester that isn't rough and dull like stretch nylon. Yet, it surpasses stretch nylon in toughness and it won't degrade at all during the long hours you spend in a chlorinated pool. The unique, two-way stretch of ultra-light LustreFlex also provides the fluid fit and comfort world-class swimmers demand. Get into LustreFlex from Speedo. You're going to shine.
